THE METEOR OF JULY TWENTIETH.

From all the accounts that have as yet reached us, this wonderful meteor, or cluster of meteors, for such it was, was first seen by the inhabitants of Detroit, Michigan. From the statements given they seem to have observed it at the moment that it became luminous from entering the earth's atmosphere. It was undoubtedly seen much farther West, and we may yet hear that such has been the case. At that time it was about forty-five miles from the surface of the earth. By the observations of Dr. Peters, of Hamilton College, Clinton, N. Y., it was thirty-five miles high when it passed south of that place. Another excellent observation for determining its height was made by a gentleman at Fulton, N. Y., who saw it actually occult the planet Mars. It nearest approach to the planet's surface, was when it passed over Hudson, at an altitude of nearly thirty-five miles. The observations made at the Cambridge observatory give it the same altitude above the sea when bearing south. When it first became visible, it was over the central part of Michigan; it then crossed over Lake Huron, passed a few miles south of the Falls of Niagara, traversing the State of New York in an easterly direction, and crossing the Hudson a little to the south of West Point. The last we hear of it, is that it was seen by two vessels which were severally 250 and 300 miles out at sea.

Professor Bond considers it probable that it did not fall upon the earth; but that, continuing its uninterrupted course, it passed over our atmosphere while over the Atlantic Ocean. But notwithstanding that this deduction best satisfies the observations hitherto received, we should look with much interest for accounts from Bermuda and the Cape Verde Islands, both of which lie near the presumed path of the meteor, and from vessels which may have been sufficiently near its track to have witnessed it.

Not the least interesting incident connected with its appearance in this vicinity is the fact of its having been observed through a telescope 5 inches aperture by Mr. C. A. Damon of this city, who claimed at the moment to be looking at the planet Mars. Seeing the light of the meteor, he turned his telescope upon it, and followed its course until it passed out of sight. He made a sketch of its appearance, showing that the train of sparks which it left behind, came from the front of the mass, where the combustion of the air being greatest. This may also explain why the meteor appeared so white and brilliant at first, when the front of it, in an incandescent state, was presented to view, and then saw the back of it where the heat was not so violent. This sketch, Mr. Damon sent to Professor Bond, through whose kindness we have been allowed to examine it, and it will prove a most agreeable and wholesome beverage to ladies and children.

Mr. H. Remond, writing from the Evening Star of December 3, 1889:

"A REMARKABLE FIRE ALARM.—Mr. Davison's successor in the Washington Brewery, corner of K and 27th streets, Mr. Colman, is now manufacturing XX and other brands of beer. His extensive manufacturing facilities, he flatters himself that his ALES will compare favorably with any manufactured, either in or out of the State of Virginia.

If necessary, he could fill columns with the many flattering testimonials he has received with regard to the superiority of his ALES, from the press and the public; but he prefers that his ALE speak for itself.

By a strict personal attention to business, and a determination to manufacture nothing but a superior quality of PURE ALE, he hopes to merit a share of public patronage.
